

a 2012 0071

The invention relates to biotechnology and can be used in the wine industry.

The strain of Saccharomyces vini yeast, deposited in the National Collection of Nonpathogenic Microorganisms under the number CNMN-Y-26, can be used in the production of white dry wines.

The result consists in the selection of a local yeast strain with the ability of carbohydrate fermentation at low temperatures to produce high-quality wine.

Claims: 1